This talk will present and pitch for a usage-based grammar, which will attempt to give an account for the ways native speakers speak and use the language in actual communication. Professor Lee will examine samples of grammatical descriptions given in the major Korean language textbooks and evaluate their validity in terms of whether they truthfully and sufficiently reflect the usages and usage-patterns of Korean. For the full abstract, click HERE.